Douglas, the former champion, also proved that ne was on his game, while A. G. Lockwood won rom A. L. Norris in a way that seemed to indicate that on a pinch he might have revealed

a record-breaking game. Still another incident was that two of the three amateurs who relied pon profession ils as caddies were put out. There was rather a high southerly wind blowing, but it could hardly be called an unpleasintfactor, for it tempered the heat and made the walk over the links enjoyable to both players and onlookers. As on the medal play day, there was not a great concourse of spectators present, the "gallery" being made up of a couple of hundred enthusiasts, who had run down from town, and about as many women as men of the Garden City, Meadow Brook and Wheatley Hills colonies.

Only one of the representatives west of Pennsylvania who started among the 103 in the qualifying round has still a life, T. Sterling Beckwith f Cleveland Roston has on the list of possibilities Shaw and Lockwood. Philadelphia has V. M. McCawley, while Rochester as well as Harvard are entitled to J. G. Averill. Byers owes allegiance to both Pittsburg and Yale and Scranton has J. H. Brooks. Of the others, J. A. Tyng lives in New Jersey, Travis hails from Flushing, Harriman is a resident of Wheatley Hills and Reid, Jr., lives at Yonkers, while Richardson, Robertson, Hitchcock, Jr., Douglas and Hollins are New Yorkers for most of the year. John Stuart is entered from Princeton, where he learned the game, although his parents live at Chicago. The list indicates his parents live at Chicago. The list indicates how widely diffused is the interest in the outcome of the week's play, aside from the golfing point of view.

The Travis and Watson match had the largest following in the morning, the two having been the leaders at medal play, and, to fan the interest, it was known that on their past form there was only little to choose between them. The was only little to choose between them. The luck of the draw had given to Travis a hard nut to orack, but he accomplished the task, although with not too much to spare. Be-ginning with an ordinary half in 5, Travis won he second in a par 3, Watson here missing a one oot put to half. Another half followed, when foot put to half. Another half followed, when Watson evened the score on the fourth green in 5 to 6. Two halves in 4 followed, absolutely par golf, and then, by getting down a fifteen foot put, Travis won the seventh in 4 to 5. Here he was a stroke under bogey, which Watson had equalled. Watson missed his drive from the eighth tee, and he overplayed his approach to the ninth, Travis winning both holes in a 6 and 5. Three up at the turn Travis took the next four in 4. 4, 3, 5, perfect golf. A par 4 halved the fourteenth. Playing easily thereafter Travis was 5 up at the end of the morning.

Young Livingston, who, since he last met Harriman in the Westbrook open tournament last summer, where he lost by only 1 up, has won quite a distinguished place in M. G. A. records. He went out with Harriman yesterday in a most spirite; way and was 1 up at the turn. The rame was as close coming home, but, when I down, Livingston was bunkered on his econd or the seventeenth. He won the home hole in a par3, but was 1 down on the round. This was the state of affairs that stirred up Harriman's golfing energies, and on the out holes in the afternoon he showed flawless golf, making, as an instance, the 502-yard four h hole in 4 and getting a 3 on the 290-yard sixth hole. To the turn he was 36, three strokes under begav. Livingston hung on in a splendid way, getting five hole-in 4's, so that he was only 5 down against this great card Harriman now had the match secure, winning by 3 up and 2 to play. The eards:

Reginald Brooks, who had put out Douglas in He was only one down at the end of the moing, having scored repeatedly in putting, an in which he is a past master. Douglas was better on the long game, but often in difficult from the test through getting a slice readed down in this respect in the afternoand, although he made a mess of the second, Douglas won out easily. The cards:

There was much interest in the Lockwood and Norris match, for the latter is one of the steadlest scratch men in the M. G. A. and, while hardly regarded as quite in Lockwood's class, it was thought that he manufactured to the control of the contro

Both the matches in which the schoolboys took part were brilliantly played. They afforded plenty of entertainment to the enthusiasts and, possibly, instruction, if anything is to be learned by seeing an expert in play. Their competitors were also of the younger set and it was a treat to watch the steadiness and skill shown by each one of the quartette. Hollins, Jr., had Richardson of Harvard as his opponent. In the long game they were about equal, but Hollins, Jr., did not put well in the morning. In the afternoon the interscholastic champion improved in this respect, of that he was able to increase the lead of the morning and win by 2 up and 1 to play. The score shows how well the match was fought out. It is not a wholly idle dream to say that Hollins, Jr., may be a double champion at the end of the week. The cards:

Southampton, July 3.—There were at least a thousand people on the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club links to-day to see the Vardon-Hutchinson match, and they were well paid for their visit, for it was as fine an exhibition of golf as has been seen in this country. Vardon on his first round equalled the record for the course. 70, made by Hutchinson in practice and outplayed his man at every point. Vardon had the honor in the first tee and got off in good style. Hutchinson made a pretty stroke and they both had a good lie. The next shot put Vardon on the green, Hutchinson approaching short. Vardon won the hole with a 4. Vardon on his second drive carried about two hundred yards and won the hole in 3. Driving off the fourth they both made good distance and halved the hole in 4. The fifth, a very tricky hole, as Vardon put it, is neither a drive nor an iron shot. Vardon won with a good 3. For the sixth hole both got away well, Vardon on his approach made a shot that brought forth great applause and won the hole in four. The record of the course would have been lowered but for a rather peculiar thing happening. Playing for the tenth green the flag on the bunker was the object which Vardon seemed to take for his drive, and the bail hit the flag, hung on for a minute and dropped in the bunker. After this Hutchinson was entirely out of it, and Vardon won by 12 up, 11 to play. Score by strokes: MORNING

LARNED BEATEN BY HALL. The Middle States Lawn Tennis Tournament

Furnishes a Big Surprise. The second day's play in the Middle States championship lawn tennis tournament developed a big surprise at Orange yesterday afternoon in the defeat of W. A. Larned by E. L. Hall. It was Larned's first appearance since his defeat by J. D. Pell, a Columbia boy, at Southampton last August. He has taken great interest in the game again this spring and showed such good form in his practice that he has already been freely talked of as a possible member of the American team for the internationa matches next month. Hall is the veteran who celebrated his return to competition this spring celebrated his return to competition this spring by winning the New Jersey State championship three weeks ago.

In yesterhay's match Hall showed all of his old-time skill and a little more speed than in the New Jersey tournament. Again his underhand volleying and tricky lobs earned many aces for him, and his iannous nerve was very much in evidence. Larned completely outplayed him in the first set and led up to 4—2 and 5—4 in the second, only finally to lose it by 7—5. Hall's play was very strong in the deciding set and he kept Larned running about the court in heart-breaking fashion. The Summit expert seemed afraid to let out and hit the balls hard and Hall was so active in getting about and reaching them when he did that he soon found it did not pay. Hall led up to 5—2, when Larned pulled himself together and got two deuce games only to lose the set by 6—4 and the match.

One other surprise was in store for the experts when Holcomb Ward beat E. P. Fischer, the Metropolitan champion, in straight sets. To-day Hall meets Ward, Paret plays Wright, Davis meets Stevens and Clothier plays Souther. Yesterday's score follows:

Championship Singles—First round—J. P. Paret Par H. McK. Jones by default; B. C. Wirch Lea J.

HACKENSACK, July 3.-The Oritani Field Club, which is in financial straits, held a second special meeting last evening to consider a proposition for selling a portion of the club proposition for selling a portion of the club property. This was voted down almost unanimously. During a heated discussion it was divulged that Senator William M. Johnson had made a liberal fifer for a part of the ground upon which to erect his proposed public library building, but the offer never was made known to the club. It was proposed to take up a burdensome club mortgage by issuing scrip, for which the Senator offered a liberal subscription. The project, however, fell short. J. W. Thompson charged that the improper management of the club for a number of years was responsible for the present condition of affairs, which allegation created an excitement that led to the resignation of Govs. William Morse and James P. Clarendon, who resented the imputation upon their official conduct.

After a prolonged controversy the meeting adjourned for two weeks, when there will be a proposition to change the nature of the club by making it "wet." This will exclude women and children, which constitute an important element of the organization. The deterioration of Oritant's attributed primarily to a conservative management, which excluded wheelmen and more recently to the organization of the Hackenseck Golf Club. There is a large delinquent list in Oritant. The club's debt is $20,000. erty. This was voted down almost unanimous

IT IS YPSOLOPUS POMETELLUS.

That's the Name of the Insect That Is Ravag ing Orchards in Western New York. GENEVA, N. Y., July 3 .- Victor H. Lowe entomologist to the State experiment statio in this city, has just identified as ypsolopus pometellus the insect, heretofore unknown which has been so destructive in the orchards of western New York this summer. This is its third known appearance in one hundred and ten years. The attention of the experiment station authorities was first drawn to the insect by the large number of inquiries which has been found near this city and in countless thousands in Wayne, Monroe, Orleans and Niagara counties. It probably occurs in all it has been very destructive, whole orchards in some cases being affected by it. It is found usually on apple trees, on the leaves and young fruit of which it feeds. Its greatest injury is done to the young apples, the skin of which it pierces and the flesh of which it eats. Mr. Lowe says that it is possible that the insect may appear in even greater numbers next year. So far as known the insect first appeared in 1791 in New England and the appeared in 1791 in New England and the eastern part of this State, but it was not studied until its second known appearance, in 1853, when it was again reported from New England and from the Hudson Valley and adjacent localities. It was then described in a scientific way by Dr. Harris, a reputable entomologist of that day, and after much discussion by scientific trans given the name it now hears. calities. It was then described in a scienting way by Dr. Harris, a reputable entomologist of that day, and after much discussion by scientists it was given the name it now bears. The insect first appears as a small, active caterpillar the first week in June, about the time the canker worm disappears. The caterpillar is about a fourth of an inch in length. It is characterized by a light vellow median line along the entire length of its back and a darker line along each side of about the same width. The median line sometimes has a fine, darker line running its entire length. The body of the caterpillar is light yellowish brown in color, fading to pale sulphur vellow underneath. The colors vary in shading, the yellow often having a marked greenish tinge. The head of the caterpillar is polished. It is very active, and when the limb on which it is is suddenly larred, it drops in the air, being suspended by a very minute silk thread. When it crawls it does not form a loop, as does the canker worm. The caterpillar probably feeds during two or three weeks and then enters the chrysalids are found attached to the leaves upon which the caterpillars feed. The moths appear about ten days later. The chrysalids are found attached to the leaves upon which the caterpillars feed. The moths appear about the days later. The chrysalids are about one-eighth of an inch long, while the moth is about three-eighths of an inch long, while the moth is about three-eighths of an inch long, while the moth is about three-eighths of an inch long, while the moth is about three-eighths of an inch long, while the moth is about three-eighths of an inch long, while the moth is about three-eighths of an inch long, while the moth is about three-eighths of an inch long is practically anything of its life history known.

A few of the caterpillars are still feeding, but most of them have entered the chrysalis state. Mr. Lowe says, judging from its history. Y psolopus pometellus is probably one of those insects which appear, cause more or less destructi

BARK SUNK BY A SCHOONER. The Schooner Said to Have Sailed Away Without Offering Assistance.

NORPOLK, Va., July 3.-Capt. G. R. Curvin of the British bark Bessie Markham arrived here this evening and told of the loss of the bark and the drowning of one of his men. He and the rest of the crew came in on the schooner C. C. Lane, Capt. Tullock, which picked them up at sea three hours after the bark went to up at sea three hours after the bark went to the bottom.

The Markham, which was owned by George McLeod of St. John, N. B., sailed from Philiadelphia for St. John, June 25, with 1003 tons of coal. On June 28, at 7:30 A. M., in a dense for, a big five-masted schooner loomed up in the fog and crashed into the bark. The bark was cut down below the water line, her fore-mast fell and she went down within five minutes. Edward Kirby, a seaman, went down with her. The survivors say that after the schooner rammed the bark, some one aboard sang out: "Are you loaded?" and then the schooner without pausing to offer aid sailed away in the fog. On her stern was painted "Jennie French Potter, of New York."

The crew of the bark took to the boats and presently were rescued.

SOUTH SPINNERS DISSATISFIED. the Fall in the Price of Yarn.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 3.-The following committee appointed by the Southern Cotton Spinners' Association left here to-tight for the hardt, J. A. Abernethy and George E. Wilson.

The yarn manufacturers of the South hold the commission merchants in the North responsible for the recent decline in prices. This committee goes instructed to investigate the condition of the market and if the commission man is at fault it is very probable that Southern agencies through which the product of the yarn mills in the South can be handled will be established in New York, Philadelphia and Boston. Philadelphia will be the first stopping place.

TON OF GOLD FROM THE KLONDIKE.

The Steamer Dirigo Brings Down Seventy five Miners and About Half a Million. SEATTLE, Wash. July 3.—The steamer Dirigo from Skagway arrived this afternoon with seventy-five miners and a ton of Klondike gold from the Bank of British North America consigned to the Seattle assay office. The time between Dawson and Seattle is now reduced to ten days, with a possibility of reducing it to ten days, with a possibility of reducing from seven.

The steamer Oregon arrived to-day from Cape Nome beating all previous records, making the trip in seven days and sixteen hours. She brought out but few passengers and no treasure. She reports great activity in building at Nome and in mining operations on the beach and creek diggings.

Cornell Oarsmen Say They Were Defeated by

Better Crews. ITHACA, July 8.—The Cornell oarsmen returned from Poughkeepsle this evening. They felt rather blue over the fact that they had lost all of the three races in which they were entered. All of them were in good health and not one could befound who had any reason to offer for the defeat other than they had met superior crews. All have as much confidence in the veteran coach as ever and every one will be as loya to him as before. The men do complain, however, over the manner in which the course was kept. The swells from the beats allowed on it interfered much with the racing. While all of the crews had to get through these swells, it happened that Cornell suffered the most from them. It is likely that unless the authorities at Poughkeepsie can give a positive guarantee that the river will be kept absolutely free from boats of every sort Cornell will ask for a new course next year.

At the close of the races the 'Varsity eight selected the captain for next year. Henry Ernest Vanderhoef, '01, was elected. Vanderhoef has rowed for two years in the 'Varsity eight and is one of the strongest men in the boat. No captain of the freshman crew was chosen. All have as much confidence in the veteran

The boatmen of New York and Brooklyn are talking of nothing else this week but a match race that is to take place next Sunday afternoon between John Shea of the Atlantic Dock, Brooklyn, and W. J. Quigley, the best-known boatman at the Battery landing. The two men have each placed $100 in the men have each placed $100 in the hands of a stakeholder, and the race will be for that amount, winner to take all. The conditions call for a 19-foot Whitehall working boat. No ballast is to be allowed; but each contestant can crowd on as much canvas as he thinks the boat will stand. Oars will also be forbidden. The boats will start at 3 o'clock on Sunday from the Battery, and will go to Robbins Reef and return.

"I have sails rigged up that were never heard of" said Quigley yesterday. "I will have more canvas on the boat than many a 60-footer carries. The agreement of the race is that each man can have one assistant on the boat. I have so great a sail spread that my assistant and myself are only going to wear our underclothing during the race, as the boat will be cranky to say the least. But that money ain't going to Brooklyn."

The betting along the Battery vesterday was

The betting along the Battery yesterday was 5 to 3 in favor of Quigley's boat.

BODIES OF W. B. CURTIS AND ALLEN ORMSBEE REACH HERE TO-DAY.

amentable Fate of Two Noted Athletes-Both Perish in Bliggard While Attempting to Climb Summit of Mount Washington -Younger Man Almost Reaches the Goal, Members of the New York A. C. and other athletic associations thronged the clubhouse at Fifty-ninth street and Sixth avenue yesterday to learn further particulars of the sad with Allen Ormsbee, a member of the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn, lost his life in an attempt to climb Mount Washington, some time between Saturday afternoon and Monday morning A further telegram was received confirming the brief despatch as to his death received on Monday night and stating that Mr. Curtis and his companion were frozen to death in the blizzard which raged for two days at Mount Washington, and which was one of the most evere on record for this time of the year in the White Mountain range.

The bodies were found more than a mile apart on the Crawford bridle path, the route which they had previously selected for their climb to the summit. That of Ormsbee lay only about an eighth of a mile from the Summit House, the haven which he was evidently trying to reach in order to obtain aid for him self and companion.

Mr. Curtis, Allen Ormsbee and Fred B. Ilgen. all anthusiastic mountain climbers, started on week. After ascending some of the outlying summits, they reached the Twin Mountain station on Friday night. Ormsbee and Curtis ook a train to the Crawford House early Saturday morning, with the intention of climbing Mount Willard, and later ascending Mount Washington by way of the Crawford trail. Mr. Ilgen left Curtis and Ormsbee at Twin the safety of Curtis and Ormsbee, as it was known that they were to start out on the Crawford trail that morning. Thaddeus Lowe and Byron Lowe, who have spent ther lives as guides in the vicinity of Mount Washington, started out in the face of the bilzzard on Saturday night in search of the two men, but before they had gone any distance the fury of the storm drove them back. On Sunday it was still impossible to venture out in the storm. On Monday morning as Louis Cutter of Winchester, was making his way down the Crawford bridle path in hope of meeting the missing men, he stumbled across the body of Mr. Curtis lying near the path.

The place was near the Lakes of the Clouds. Cutter spent some time looking about for Mr. Ormsbee. He then returned to the summit and on his way met several members of the Appalachian party one of whom was a friend of Ormsbee. These men in their search of the vicinity found two cameras, indicating that the missing men had reached that point.

While returning to the summit Mr. Parker, who was one of the party, found the body of Mr. Ormsbee only a short distance from the Summit House. In this case, as in that of Curtis, the position of the body indicated that the man had struggled until overcome by the severity of the storm. It is thought that the two reached the shelter of the peaks of Mount Monroe and that Mr. Curtis, being the elder of the two, waited there while Mr. Ormsbee attempted to reach the Summit House said.

ing for Ormsbee, it is thought Mr. Curtis started over the lev, wind-swept path, only to meet his death. The gale was phenomenal.

Oscar Barron of Fabyan's took charge of the bodies and a special train brought them to the base of the mountain. Arrangements were at once made for conveying the remains of the two climbers to New York, and information was received at the N. Y. A. C. clubhouse vesterday afternoon that they would arrive at the Grand Central depot at 8.30 this morning in charge of Mr. Ilgen, who is an old friend of the dead athletes. friend of the dead athletes.

A meeting was held at the New York A. C. last night to arrange for the reception of the remains to-day and for the funeral services. The following were present, many of them being members of the New York A. C. as well as the Fresh Air Club:

who met his death with Curtis, had been com-municated with and it was decided to have the funeral services of both take place at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church on Friday morning. Mr. curtis will the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church on Friday morning. Mr. Curtis will be intered at Woodlawn Cemetery, but it is not yet decided where Ormsbee's body will be laid. The latter was 29 years old and connected with the Russell and Erwin Manufacturing Company. He was a member of the Crescent A. C., as well as a regular participant in the Fresh Air Club excursions, and lived at 183 Joralemon street, Brooklyn.

The following committee was appointed to receive the bodies and attend to the funeral arrangements: H. E. Buermeyer, Mortimer Bishop and Sameel J. Montgomery.

The idea of holding the funeral services at the New York A. C. house was abandoned, as Mr. Ormsbee was not a member of the club, and it was thought more desirable to have the services over the two ill-fated companions conducted together.

Mr. Curtis was unmarried, but his brother, Edward H. Curtis, who lives in Chicago, has been notified and will be in New York to-morrow morning, when he will be the guest of the N. Y. A. C.

The erection of a tablet to the memory of N.Y.A.C.

The erection of a tablet to the memory of Curtis and Ornsbee on the spot where they succumbed, was considered at the meeting and the details left to the committee.

A fund had been raised among the members of the New York A. '.' to have life-size oil paintings of Curtis and Buermeyer made for the clubhouse, but the former had not given the artist a sitting.

It was proposed last night that in lieu of the photograph a cast of the athlete's face be taken and a bust modelled for the clubhouse.

Harry Buermeyer, the ex-champion heavy-weight boxer and all around athlete, who has been a life-long friend of Curtis was exceedingly cut up at his death, news of which did not reach him until yesterday morning. At the last annual dinner of the Fresh Air Club held in celebration of Curtis's sixty-third birthday, he seemed to have a prescience of his approaching end, and in a speech reminded the me-bers that they must get accustomed to selecting routes for themselves, as they could not reckon on having him as pathfinder much longer. Little was thought of his words at the time, but they were recalled by the gloomy crowd that discussed every incident of the pathfinder's career in the lobby of the club house last night.

The expedition which resulted in the death of two of the four members of the Fresh Air Club was originally scheduled to start on June 15, but was postponed for a week. Profesor Parker, the fourth member of the party, will accompany F.G. ligen and the remains of the two who were killed to this city.

BATTLESHIP KENTUCKY'S SEA TRIAL. Trial Board Reports Her Structurally Perfect

-Machinery and Turrets Worked Well. WASHINGTON, July 3 .- The recent test of the battleship Kentucky off Newport showed that this magnificent armorelad was structurally perfect, and that her superposed turrets were worked quite as well as those of her sister ship, the Kearsarge. In the report of the Board of Inspection and Survey, which conjucted the final trial, the statement is made that all the projectiles fired in salvo from the after superposed turret "fell in the same line

The board's report was received by the Navy Department to-day. The trial was to test the Kentucky in every particular to determine whether she was built in accordance with plans and specifications, and to decide whether any repairs should be made by the contractors. As required by the contract, the Kentucky was kept at sea for forty-eight hours. The machinery, both main and auxiliary, worked well, and the average speed for a two hours trial run was 13.95 knots an hour. The indicated horse power of the main and auxiliary machinery was 7.818. Coal was consumed at the rate of 14,300 pounds an hour, or 1.83 pounds per indicated horse power. Owing to defective polarization the firing of the guns in the forward turret was not satisfactory. Lieut. Bernadou, who had char: of this turret, says in a memorandum submitted with the board's report, that the turret had been fitted electrically for firing the guns individually, and a temporary apparatus connected with the Newport torpedo station was used to fire them in salvo. Owing to the defect mentioned, the right 13-inoh gun and the right sentoned, the right is inon gun and the right s-inoh gun of this turret were discharged prematurely at different times. In a further test one of the s-inoh guns was fired without intention. "This shows," says Lieut. Bernadon, "that the battery should be carefully insulated from the ship. It also shows that, with the present arrangemment, a ground in the property fire snother gun."

Mount Willard, and later ascending Mount Washington by way of the Crawford trail. Mr. Ilgen left Curtis and Ormsbee at Twin Mountain, and went late by rail to the summit of Mount Washington in company with several hundred members of the Appalachian Mountain Club, who were on their way to their thirty-fifth annual field meeting.

The morning was pleasant but at noon on Saturday clouds began to roil up along the entire Presidential range, of which half a dozen peaks are traversed by the Crawford path.

When the Appalachian party reached the summit, a flerce storm was raging and it was almost impossible to stand in the face of the key blizzard. The keenest anxiety was felt for the safety of Curtis and Ormsbee, as it was known that they were to start out on the Crawford trail that morning. Thaddeus Lowe and Byron Lowe, who have spent ther lives as guides in the sicinity of Mount Washington, dark of the control of the safety of Curtis and Ormsbee, as it was sliding one any distance the lury of the storm drove them back. On Sunday it was still impossible to venture out in the storm. On Monday morning as Louis Cutter of Winchester, was making his way down the Crawford trail the place was near the Lakes of the Clouds and on his way met several members of the sienity found two comeras, indicating that the missing men had reached that point. While returning to the summit for Parker, who was one of the party, found the body of Mr. Ormsbee only a short distance from the summit House of the sienity found two comeras, indicating that the missing men had reached that point. TO WITHDRAW TROOPS FROM CUBA. Cavalry and Infantry to Be Sent to Gen. Mac-Arthur at Manila.

regular soldiers to the Philippines to replace the volunteers now there and for the withdrawal of a part of the military force in Cuba, will be completed within a few days. It was announced at the War Department yesterday that the Secretary of War had under consideration the recommendation of Gen. Miles, who has submitted a list of regiments to be sent to the Philippines and to be withdrawn from Cuba. The list to go to the Philippines included several cavalry regiments, Gen. Mac-Arthur having cabled that cavalry would be more acceptable than infantry. In response to Gen. Wood's protest it has been decided not to withdraw at this time any cavalry from Cuba This decision was reached to-day, and Cuba This decision was reached to-day, and at the same time it was determined to begin the withdrawal at once of about 2,500 soldiers from Cuba. An order for the return of three regiments now in the island will be sisued within a day or two. The order will direct the return of the Second and Fifth Infantry, and the third regiment will be either the First or Eighth Infantry. Gen. Wood has approved the return of the Eighth Infantry, which is now stationed at Havana. The intention of the War Department is to have the movement for the return of these troops begin at once, and it is expected that within two weeks at least, the first of the three regiments will be under way for this country.

Falling to get cavalry from Cuba for use in the Philippines, the Secretary of War has decided to secure cavalry regiments now in service in the United States. There are but two cavalry regiments, the First and Minth, now remaining in the United States, and one or the other, and probably both, will be ordered to Manila.

As stated in The Sun this morning, the Fifteenth Infantry is so far the only regiment under orders to prepare for service in the Philippines. Orders to a number of other regiments will be issued from time to time, but the full number of troops for service in the Philippines will not be placed under orders at one time, the expectation being that conditions in the islands will be so improved that it will not be necessary to send as many troops there as are withdrawn. at the same time it was determined to begin the
